Oxford Street Parties 2010

Saturday 18 &
Sunday 19 September

"street parties are one of the most effective ways to bring communities together"
"people seemed to love the idea that just for a while,
the streets belonged to them"

(comments following 2009 event)

Have you got a couple of like-minded friends who would join up with you and help plan and run a party for your street? Are you already a member of a local community group that could do this?

Oxford Streets for People supports people who want to have a street party. You choose the date, time and what sort of party your street would like. The idea is that everyone in the street is invited along to get to know each other better and have a good time.

We'd like to see lots of events on 'street party weekend' which is Saturday 18 or Sunday 19 September - but you might prefer to hold your party at a different time of the year.

*Whatever date you choose, please let us know by registering with us, on oxstreets.org.uk The more registrations we have, the more support and help we can provide for organisers – and we can attract more publicity, which encourages others

Last year, a wide variety of activities were enjoyed – shared meals and BBQs, quizzes, street games, open air cinema, music, charity sale, 'swap shop', cycle races, badminton. Amongst the themes were fiesta, alternative transport and recycling.

Oxford Streets for People promotes our streets as valuable social spaces for everyone's shared use and enjoyment. Oxford Civic Society co-ordinates the campaign in partnership with Oxford City Council.

Help make our streets friendlier, more pleasant and safer!
